

A metallized electrode is provided at a fixed location of the main body of a package such that the metallized electrode is located above signal electrodes and is not in contact with the signal electrodes and an insulating joining material. Also, the metallized electrode is made conductive to the grounding electrode.